THE ALUMNI RECEPTION.

Brilliant Social Event Held in Armory Wednesday Night.

The Bellefonte Armory was the scene of a brilliant social event on Wednesday night, the occasion being the annual Alumni reception to the Class of 1904 Bellefonte High School. In spite of the inclemency of the weather there was a large attendance of guests and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The armory was very prettily decorated with the National flag and Class colors. The music for the occasion was furnished by Prof. Christy Smith and his famous Bellefonte orchestra. Light refreshments were served during the evening and the dancing began at ten o'clock and was kept up until the wee' sma' hours.

The committee of arrangement for the occasion were the officers of the Alumni: Misses Mildred Smith, Mable Fauble, and Bessie Dorworth and Messrs. Geo. R. Meek, Paul Fortney, Morton Smith and David Kelly.

The patronesses were Mesdames D. F. Fortney, A. C. Mingle, James K. Barnhart, John P. Harris, H. C. Quigley, W. H. Crissman, Harry Keller, D. O. Etters and J. C. Meyer.

Hand Board.

Below is the substance of law as to the duty of supervisors in Pennsylvania, in the matter of erecting and maintaining guideposts or finger boards at the junction of public highways:

"The supervisors shall cause posts to be erected at the intersection of all public roads within their respective townships (where trees are not convenient) with boards firmly fixed thereon, and index hand pointing to the direction of such roads, on which boards shall be inscribed in large and legible characters, the name of the town, village or place to which such road may lead, and the distance thereon computed in miles. If any supervisor shall, after ten days' personal notice, neglect or refuse to put up or keep in complete repair, index boards as aforesaid, such supervisors shall for every such offense, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding $10."

Constables are required by law to make a sworn statement to each court of quarter sessions, stating whether or not all index boards are up, reporting particularly any that are not up.

In many townships this law is ignored and constables should see that it is complied with.

New Methodist Bishops.

Dr. J. F. Berry, editor of the Epworth Herald, was the first new bishop elected of the eight to be chosen by the Methodist general conference now in session in Los Angeles. Of the eight new bishops two will fill vacancies caused by death, one will succeed a bishop who has voluntarily retired, and five the places of those retired by the conference on account of advanced age.

While there has been considerable criticism on account of the forced retirement of so many bishops, some of whom are still mentally and physically vigorous, the large majority favorable to this action indicates that the best interests of this great christian denomination was the dominant motive that prompted the conference in making the changes. The splendid old bishops who have been retired are revered by every worthy clergyman and layman in the Methodist Episcopal church, They have served their church with devotion, with honor and with success. They present a worthy example for their successors to follow.

New Mail Service.

An additional mail clerk has been granted by the Post Office Department on the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad. This will make all the trains on this road mail trains, and will give the South Side of Centre county a service that was long desired, but always denied.

This additional mail service will also make the rural mail service from Spring Mills more desirable, since mail can now be sent to Spring Mills in the morning and be delivered on the several routes the same day.

Return mail to Centre Hall can also be had from all towns in the Valley along the railroad, including Millheim, Rebersburg, Madisonburg, Aaronsburg, Boalsburg and State College.

On the Bald Eagle valley the service has also been doubled. Postal clerk Igo will make his usual run down on the train arriving here at 9:32, returning on the train at 1:05. The additional clerk comes down on the train at 1:25, returning at 4:44. This improved service will enable correspondents along the valley to transact business in one day that heretofore has required two.

BRIEF SKETCHES OF THE DEPARTED.

Of all the sudden deaths that have occurred recently in our midst none have caused more general sorrow and surprise than the death of Hamilton Otto which sad event transpired at his home on East Lamb street Thursday morning at 9 o,clock.

Mr. Otto was subject to heart trouble for several years but was able to attend to his business and was in his store all day Wednesday and up until ten o'clock Wednesday night. About ten o'clock he complained to James Lose, who was in the store at the time, of a severe pain in his chest. The latter offered to accompany him home and did so. When Mr. Otto reached home he was overcome and his condition becam every alarming. All that medical skill could do for him was done, but he passed away at the above stated time. Death was due to heart disease.

Hamilton Otto was born in Bedford county, August 27, 1854, and was a son of Levi and Mary Otto. He has been a resident of Bellefonte for the past 31 years. MRS. MARTHA BAYARD.

After an illness of eight weeks duration Mrs. Martha Johnson Bayard widow of the late Col. George A. Bayard, passed away at 1 o'clock Monday morning at her home on North Spring street. Death was due to Bright's disease, superinduced by dropsy and heart trouble. She had been confined to her bed for about three weeks and had been gradually sinking since Friday night. Surrounded by a loving and sorrowing family she quietly and peacefully breathed her last at the above stated time.

The deceased was born at Boalsburg, Centre county, April 8, 1840 making her age 64 years, 1 month and 15 days. Her maiden name was Martha H. Johnson and she was the daughter of James and Margaret Johnson deceased. She received her education at the Boalsburg Academy. For almost fifty years she had been a resident of Bellefonte, her family locating here in 1855. In 1858 she was joined in holy wedlock at Bellefonte to George A. Bayard whose sad and sudden death last summer proved such a shock to the whole community. Surviving this union are the following children: Mrs. Geo. Bowen, of Canton, Ohio; Walter W., and John J., of Los Angeles, California; Geo. D., of Glen Campbel, Pa.; James J., Ursula, Caroline C., Sarah P., and Roger T., all of Bellefonte.

The death of Mrs. Bayard has caused general sorrow and regret. She was a lovable woman of a kindly and sunny disposition. A loving mother, and a kind neighbor and friend. None knew her but to love her, none named her but to praise her. She was a true christian woman and a member of the Presbyterian church.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Presbyterian church, Rev. Wm. Laurie officiating, assisted by Rev. H. C. Holloway of the Lutheran church. The latter was a class mate of the deceased at the Boalsburg Academy.

The interment was made in the Union cemetery.

MISS TAMAZINE PENNINGTON.

Thursday evening at twenty minutes after eight o'clock the angle of death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Pennington on Penn street and called away the spirit life of their daughter Tamazine to a home in Glory.

Miss Pennington was a very bright young colored lady and was a student in the C., Class at the Bellefonte High School. She was studying earnestly so as to graduate with her class in 1907. On Monday she contracted a heavy cold which developed into pneumonia which caused her death at the above mentioned time.

She was an earnest christian young lady and when she knew she could not get well she resigned herself to the will of God and said she was ready to go. She was an active member of the African Methodist Episcopal church and was always found in the house of worship when necessary.

Men Suspended.

The Pennsylvania railroad on Tuesday suspended about 700 employes of Altoona shops, making 1,000 in the last few weeks. The greatest number was from the Juniata shops, 500 beingdiemissed from there. Many departments are working eight hours a day and five days a week.

The officials of the Middle division were also instructed to reduce the number of men on the rolls. A number of men employed on the shifting crews were suspended. At the Hollidaysburg round house the working force, which was but recently established, was cut practically in half. Thirty-nine of the seventy-one men were suspended. Seven men were recently suspended at the Huntingdon and seven men at the Mifflintown shops. Other men will be suspended to bring the force down to a solid working basis. The cut along the Middle division was made for the reason that there has been a general falling off of business over the road.

THE VOTE AS COUNTED THIS WEEK.

The Republican News contest for the World's Fair Tour to the most popular teacher in Centre county will close Tuesday evening June 14th at 7 o'clock, instead of June 11. The friends of the different candidates have only three weeks longer to make the fight for their favorite teacher and no time should be lost if you wish to land your candidate a winner. Every new subscriber to either the Daily News or Republican will count 50 votes for every dollar paid. 30 votes will be given for every dollar paid on back subscription.

CONTINUED.

Wilbur suddenly realized that he held a knife and that he was directly abreast the sand rampart. How he got the knife he could not tell, though he afterward distinctly remembered throwing away his revolver, loaded as it was. He had leaped the breastworks—he knew that—and between him and the vast bright blur of the ocean he saw one of the beachcombers backing away and watching him intently, his hatchet in his hand. Wilbur had only time to think that he himself would no doubt be killed within the next few moments when this latter halted abruptly, took a step forward and, instead of striking downward, as Wilbur had anticipated, dropped upon his knee and struck with all his might at the calf of Wilbur's leg. It was only the thickness of his boots that saved Wilbur from being hamstrung where he stood. As it was, he felt the blade bite almost to the bone and heard the blood squelch in the sole of his boot as he staggered for the moment, almost tripping over the man in front of him.

The Chinaman sprang to his feet again, but Wilbur was at him in an instant, feeling instinctively that his chance was to close with his man and so bring his own superior weight and strength to bear. Again and again he tried to run in and grip the slim yellow body, but the other dodged and backed away, as hard to hold as any fish. All around and back of him now Wilbur heard the hideous sound of stamping and struggling and the noise of hoarse, quick shouts and the rebound of bodies falling and rolling upon the hard, smooth beach. The thing had not been a farce, after all. This was fighting at last, and there within arm's length were men grappling and gripping and hitting one another, each honestly striving to kill his fellow—Chinamen all, fighting in barbarous oriental fashion with nails and teeth when the knife or hatchet failed. What did he, club man and college man, in that hideous trouble that wrought itself out there on that heat stricken tropic beach under that morning's sun?

Suddenly there was a flash of red flame, and a billow of thick, yellow smoke filled all the air. The cabin was afire. The hatchet man with whom Wilbur was fighting had been backing in this direction. He was close in when the fire began to leap from the one window. Now he could go no farther. He turned to run sideways between his enemy and the burning cabin. Wilbur thrust his foot sharply forward. The beachcomber tripped, staggered, and before he had reached the ground Wilbur had driven home the knife.

Then suddenly, at the sight of his smitten enemy rolling on the ground at his feet, the primitive man, the half brute of the stone age, leaped to life in Wilbur's breast. He felt his muscles thrilling with a strength they had not known before. His nerves, stretched tense as harp strings, were vibrating to a new tune. His blood spun through his veins till his ears roared with the rush of it. Never had he conceived of such savage exultation as that which mastered him at that instant. The knowledge that he could kill filled him with a sense of power that was veritably royal. He felt physically larger. It was the joy of battle, the horrid exhilaration of killing, the animal of the race, the human brute suddenly aroused and dominating every instinct and tradition of centuries of civilization. The fight still was going forward.

Wilbur could hear the sounds of it, though from where he stood all sight was shut off by the smoke of the burning house. As he turned about, knife in hand, debating what next he should do, a figure burst down upon him, shadowy and distorted through the haze.

It was Moran, but Moran as Wilbur had never seen her before. Her eyes were blazing under her thick frown like fire under a bush. Her arms were bared to the elbow, her heavy ropes of hair flying and coiling from her in all directions, while with a voice hoarse from shouting she chanted, in her long forgotten Norse tongue, fragments of old sagas, words and sentences meaningless even to herself. The fury of battle had exalted her to a sort of frenzy. She was beside herself with excitement. Once more she had lapsed back to the vikings and sea rovers of the tenth century; she was Brunehild again, a shield maiden, a Valkyrie, a berserker and the daughter of berserkers, and, like them, she fought in a veritable frenzy, seeing nothing, hearing nothing, every sense exalted, every force doubled, insensible to pain, deaf to all reason.

Her dirk uplifted, she rushed upon Wilbur, never once pausing in her chant. Wilbur shouted a warning to her as she came on, puzzled beyond words, startled back to a consciousness of himself again by this insensate attack.

"Moran! Moran!" he called. "What is it? You're wrong! It's I! It's Wilbur, your mate! Can't you see?"

Moran could not see. Blind to friend or foe, as she was deaf to reason, she struck at him with all the strength of her arm. But there was no skill in her fighting now. Wilbur dropped his own knife and gripped her right wrist. She closed with him upon the instant, clutching at his throat with her one free hand, and as he felt her strength, doubled and tripled in the fury of her madness, Wilbur knew that, however easily he had overcome his enemy of a moment before, he was now fighting for his very life.

At first Wilbur merely struggled to keep her from him—to prevent her using her dirk. He tried not to hurt her. But what with the spirits he had drunk before the attack, what with the excitement of the attack itself and the sudden unleashing of the brute in him an instant before, the whole affair grew dim and hazy in his mind. He ceased to see things in their proportion. His new found strength gloried in matching itself with another strength that was its equal. He fought with Moran not as he would fight either woman or man or with anything human, for the matter of that. He fought with her as against some impersonal force that it was incumbent upon him to conquer—that it was imperative he should conquer if he wished to live. When she struck, he struck blow for blow, force for force, his strength against hers, glorying in that strange contest, though he never once forgot that this last enemy was the girl he loved. It was not Moran whom he fought. It was her force, her determination, her will, her splendid independence, that he set himself to conquer.

Already she had dropped or flung away the dirk, and their battle had become an issue of sheer physical strength between them. It was a question now as to who should master the other. Twice she had fought Wilbur to his knees, the heel of her hand upon his face, his head thrust back between his shoulders, and twice he had wrenched away, rising to his feet again, panting, bleeding even, but with his teeth set and all his resolution at the sticking point. Once he saw his chance and planted his knuckles squarely between her eyes where her frown was knotted hard, hoping to stun her and end the fight once and for all. But the blow did not seem to affect her in the least. By this time he saw that her berserker rage had worked itself clear as fermenting wine clears itself and that she knew now with whom she was fighting, and he seemed now to understand the incomprehensible and to sympathize with her joy in measuring her strength against his, and yet he knew that the combat was deadly serious and that more than life was at stake. Moran despised a weakling.

For an instant, as they fell apart, she stood off, breathing hard and rolling up her sleeve. Then, as she started forward again, Wilbur met her half way, caught her round the neck and under the arm, gripping her left wrist with his right hand behind her. Then, exerting every ounce of strength he yet retained, he thrust her down and from him until at length, using his hip as a pivot, he swung her off her feet, threw her fairly on her back and held her so, one knee upon her chest, his hands closed viselike on her wrists.

Then suddenly Moran gave up, relaxing in his grasp all in a second, and, to his great surprise, suddenly smiled.

"Hoh, mate!" she exclaimed. "That was a tough one, but I'm beaten—you're stronger than I thought for."

Wilbur released her and rose to his feet.

"Here," she continued, "give me your hand. I'm as weak as a kitten." As Wilbur helped her to her feet she put her hand to her forehead, where his knuckles had left their mark, and frowned at him, but not ill naturedly.

"Next time you do that," she said, "use a rock or a belaying pin, or something that won't hurt—not your fist, mate." She looked at him admiringly. "What a two fisted, brawny dray horse it is! I told you I was stronger than most men, didn't I? But I'm the weaker of us two, and that's a fact. You've beaten, mate—I admit it. You've conquered me, and," she continued, smiling again and shaking him by the shoulder, "and, mate, do you know, I love you for it."

CHAPTER XI.

"WELL!" exclaimed Wilbur at length, the excitement of the fight returning upon him. "We have plenty to do yet. Come on, Moran."

It was no longer Moran who took the initiative—who was the leader. The brief fight upon the shore had changed all that. It was Wilbur who was now the master; it was Wilbur who was aggressive. He had known what it meant to kill. He was no longer afraid of anything—no longer hesitating. He had felt a sudden quadrupling of all his strength, moral and physical.

All that was strong and virile and brutal in him seemed to harden and stiffen in the moment after he had seen the beachcomber collapse limply on the sand under that last strong knife blow, and a sense of triumph, of boundless self confidence, leaped within him, so that he shouted aloud in a very excess of exhilaration, and, snatching up a heavy cutting-in spade that had been dropped in the fight near the burning cabin, tossed it high into the air, catching it again as it descended, like any exultant savage.

"Come on!" he cried to Moran. "Where are the beachcombers gone? I'm going to get one more before the show is over."

The two passed out of the zone of smoke and reached the other side of the burning cabin just in time to see the last of the struggle. The whole affair had not taken more than a quarter of an hour. In the end the beachcombers had been beaten. Four had fled into the waste of sand and sage that lay back of the shore and had not been pursued, a fifth had been almost hamstrung by one of the Bertha's coolies and had given himself up, a sixth, squealing and shrieking like a tiger cat, had been made prisoner, and Wilbur himself had accounted for the seventh.

As Wilbur and Moran came around the cabin they saw the Bertha Miller's Chinamen in a group not far from the water's edge, reassembled after the fight, panting and bloody, some of them bare to the belt, their weapons still in their hands. Here and there was a bandaged arm or head, but their number was complete—or, no, was it complete?

"Ought to be one more," said Wilbur, anxiously hastening forward.

As the two came up the coolies parted, and Wilbur saw one of them, his head propped up on a rolled up blouse, lying ominously still on the trampled sand.

"It's Charlie!" exclaimed Moran.

"Where's he hurt?" cried Wilbur to the group of coolies. "Jim—where's Jim? Where's he hurt, Jim?"

Jim, the only member of the crew besides Charlie who could understand or speak English, answered:

"Kai-gingh him fin' pistol, you' pistol. Charlie him fight plenty. Bimeby, when he no see, one piecee Kai-ghing he come up behin', shoot um Charlie in side—savvy?"

"Did he kill him? Is he dead?"

"No. I tinkum die plenty soon. Him no savvy nuttin' now. Him all same sleep. Plenty soon bimeby him sleep for good, I tink."

There was little blood to be seen when Wilbur gently unwrapped the torn sleeve of a blouse that had been used as a bandage. Just under the armpit was the mark of the bullet, a small puncture already closed, half hidden under a clot or two of blood. The cooly lay quite unconscious, his eyes wide open, drawing a faint, quick breath at irregular intervals.

"What do you think, mate?" asked Moran in a low voice.

"I think he's got it through the lungs," answered Wilbur, frowning in distress and perplexity. "Poor old Charlie!"

Moran went down on a knee and put a finger on the slim, corded wrist, yellow as old ivory.

"Charlie!" she called. "Charlie! Here! Don't you know me? Wake up, old chap! It's Moran. You're not hurt so very bad, are you?"

Charlie's eyes closed and opened a couple of times.

"No can tell," he answered feebly. "Hurt plenty big." Then he began to cough.

Wilbur drew a sigh of relief. "He's all right!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, I think he's all right," assented Moran.

"First thing to do now is to get him aboard the schooner," said Wilbur. "We'll take him right across in the beachcombers' dory here. By Jove!" he exclaimed on a sudden. "The ambergris! I'd forgotten all about it." His heart sank. In the hideous confusion of that morning's work all thought of the loot had been forgotten. Had the battle been for nothing, after all? The moment the beachcombers had been made aware of the meditated attack it would have been an easy matter for them to have hidden the ambergris—destroyed it even.

In two strides Wilbur had reached the beachcombers' dory and was groping in the forward cuddy. Then he uttered a great shout of satisfaction. The "stuff" was there, all of it, though the mass had been cut into quarters, three parts of it stowed in tea flails, the fourth still reeved up in the hammock netting.

"We've got it!" he cried to Moran, who had followed him. "We've got it, Moran! Over $100,000! We're rich—rich as boodlers, you and I! Oh, it was worth fighting for, after all, wasn't it? Now we'll get out of here—now we'll cut for home."

"It's only Charlie I'm thinking about," answered Moran, hesitating. "If it wasn't for that we'd be all right. I don't know whether we did right, after all, in jumping the camp here. I wouldn't like to feel that I'd got Charlie into our quarrel only to have him killed."

Wilbur stared at this new Moran in no little amazement. Where was the reckless, untamed girl of the previous night, who had sworn at him and denounced his niggling misgivings as to right and wrong?

"Hoh!" he retorted impatiently, "Charlie's right enough. And, besides, I didn't force him to anything. I—we—that is, we took the same chances. If I hadn't done for my man there behind the cabin, he would have done for me. At all events, we carried our point. We got the loot. They took it from us, and we were strong enough to get it back."

Moran merely nodded, as though satisfied with his decision, and added:

"Well, what next, mate?"

"We'll get back to the Bertha now and put to sea as soon as we can catch the tide. I'll send Jim and two of the other men across in the dory with Charlie. The rest of us will go around by the shore. We've got to have a chin-chin with Hoang, if he don't get loose aboard there and fire the boat before we can get back. I don't propose taking these beachcombers back to Frisco with us."

"What will we do with the two prisoners?" she asked.

"Let them go. We've got their arms."

The positions of the two were reversed. It was Wilbur who assumed control and direction of what went forward, Moran taking his advice and relying upon his judgment.

In accordance with Wilbur's orders, Charlie was carried aboard the dory, which, with two Chinamen at the oars, and the ambergris stowed again into the cuddy, at once set off for the schooner. Wilbur himself cut the ropes on the two prisoners and bade them shift for themselves. The rest of the party returned to the Bertha Miller around the wide sweep of the beach.

It was only by high noon, under the flogging of a merciless sun, that the entire crew of the little schooner once more reassembled under the shadow of her stranded hulk. They were quite worn out, and as soon as Charlie was lifted aboard and the ambergris—or, as they spoke of it now, the "loot"—was safely stowed in the cabin, Wilbur allowed the Chinamen three or four hours' rest. They had had neither breakfast nor dinner, but their exhaustion was greater than their hunger, and in a few moments the entire half dozen were stretched out alseep on the forward deck in the shadow of the foresail, raised for the purpose of sheltering them. However, Wilbur and Moran sought out Hoang, whom they found as they had left him, bound upon the floor of the cabin.

"Now we have a talk—savvy?" Wilbur told him as he loosed the ropes about his wrists and ankles. "We got our loot back from you, old man, and we got one of your men into the bargain. You woke up the wrong crowd, Hoang, when you went up against this outfit. You're in a bad way, my friend. Your junk is wrecked, all your oil and blubber from the whale is lost, four of your men have run away, one is killed, another one we caught and let go, another one has been hamstrung, and you yourself are our prisoner, with your teeth filed down to your gums. Now," continued Wilbur, with the profoundest gravity, "I hope this will be a lesson to you. Don't try and get too much the next time. Just be content with what is yours by right or what you are strong enough to keep, and don't try to fight white people. Other coolies, I don't say. But when you try to get the better of white people you are out of your class."

The little beachcomber (he was scarcely above five feet) rubbed his chafed wrists and fixed Wilbur with his tiny, twinkling eyes.

"What you do now?"

"We go home. I'm going to maroon you and your people here on this beach. You deserve that I should let you eat your fists by way of table board, but I'm no such dirt as you. When our men left the schooner they brought off with them a good share of our provisions. I'll leave them here for you, and there's plenty of turtle and abalone to be had for the catching. Some of the American men-of-war, I believe, come down to this bay for target practice twice a year, and if we speak any on the way up we'll ask them to call here for castaways. That's what I'll do for you, and that's all! If you don't like it you can set out to march up the coast till you hit a town, but I wouldn't advise you to try it. Now, what have you got to say?"

Hoang was silent. His cue had become unbound for half its length, and he plaited it anew, winking his eyes thoughtfully.

"Well, what do you say?" said Moran.

"I lose face," answered Hoang at length calmly.

"You lose face? What do you mean?"

"I lose face," he insisted, then added: "I heap 'shamed. You fightee my China boy, you catchee me. My boy no mo' hab me fo' boss—savvy? I go back, him no likee me. Mebbe all same killee me. I lose face—no mo' boss."

"What a herd of wild cattle!" muttered Wilbur.

"There's something in what he says, don't you think, mate?" observed Moran, bringing a braid over each shoulder and stroking it, according to her habit.

"We'll ask Jim about it," decided Wilbur.

But Jim at once confirmed Hoang's statement. "Oh, Kai-gingh killum no good boss, fo' sure," he declared.

"Don't you think, mate," said Moran, "we'd better take him up to Frisco with us? We've had enough fighting and killing."

So it was arranged that the defeated beachcomber, the whipped buccaneer, who had "lost face" and no longer dared look his men in the eye, should be taken aboard.

THE IOWA CONVENTION

ALL THE LOCAL NEWS OF A DAY

STROUDSBURG, Pa., May 19.—Mrs. Lida Brown, wife of Jacob Brown, a well-known hotel keeper at Canadensis, was arrested Wednesday charged with forgery. The warrant was issued on complaint of Cashier B. S. Jacobs, of the Stroudsburg National bank, who made affidavit that Mrs. Brown had forged the name of Elizabeth Bornhoeft as the endorser of a note for $900. It is claimed that there are eleven notes in existence in the various local banks and held by individuals aggregating $4,500, which Mrs Bornhoeft claims are not her endorsement. Mrs. Brown furnished bail in $3,500.

EASTON, Pa., May 19.—The report of the Grand Secretary submitted at the session of the State Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows Wednesday, shows the membership in Pennsylvania to be 124,062. There were 12,721 members initiated during the year, 1,014 received by card and 845 reinstated; 1,680 members died 806 withdrew, 5,456 were suspended and 50 expelled.

According to the report of the treasurer of the Grand Lodge, the receipts of that body during the past year amounted to $38,021 39, which, added to the balance that was on hand a year ago, makes a total of $51,374.58.

The disbursements during the year just closed footed up $30,132.22 which leaves a balance of $21,242.36 on hand.

During the year there were twenty-eight Rebekah Lodges instituted in the state and there was an increase of 2,124 in the membership of that branch of the order.

The total amount paid out last year by the subordinate lodges for relief was $646,236.65.

The children of the Odd Fellows' Orphans' Home, of Sunbury, arrived here Wednesday morning and visited the Grand Lodge of the Order. There were about seventy of the tots. This afternoon the children are the guests of the State Assembly of Rebekah.

Ten thousand people attended the promenade concert given on the city's main thoroughfare Tuesday evening. Three bands of music located two squares apart, gave concerts. The degree team of Lady Lincoln Lodge, of Allentown, conferred the Rebekah degree, before the Rebekah State Assembly Tuesday evening. Thirty-two women compose the team.

The State Grand Lodge Wednesday decided to hold its next annual meeting at Scranton.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 19.—Iowa's long fight between "stand pat" Republicans and Liberals, upon issues of tariff revision and reciprocity, ended in complete victory for the former in Wednesday's state convention for selecting delegates to the National convention. Of twenty-six delegates chosen, twenty are "stand patters," and only six are liberals. The resolutions adopted contain no sentiment whatever in favor of tariff revision, but declare that the protective principal "found its high fulfillment" in the Dingley law. As to reciprocity, the platform declares that it is unwise to seek markets abroad by sacrificing some parts of the markets at home."

The resolutions endorse President Roosevelt.

BELLEVERNON, Pa., May 19.—Jealous without cause, Clyde Robinson, 21 years old, Wednesday shot and instantly killed his 19 year-old wife, then turning the weapon upon himself, put a bullet in his own brain. He died without regaining consciousness. The crime had no witness.

The couple had a stormy married life, owing to husband's jealousy. About an hour after they had gone upstairs, Mrs. Baily, sister of the murdered woman, heard shots and hurried to the scene. When she arrived Mrs. Robinson was dead and the man unconscious. The deed had evidently been deliberately planned.

Between the ages of fifteen and forty-five the time when womanhood begins and motherhood ends, it is estimated that the aggregated term of woman's suffering is ten years. Ten years out of thirty! One third of the best part of a woman's life sacrificed! Think of the enormous loss of time. But time is not all that is lost. These years of suffering steal the bloom from the cheeks, the brightness from the eyes, the fairness from the form. They write their record in many a crease and wrinkle. What a boon then to woman, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It promotes perfect regularity, dries up debilitating drains, heals ulceration, cures female weakness, and establishes the delicate womanly organs in vigorous and permanent health. No other medicine can do for woman what is done by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

HABITS AND FACES.

The Bicycle and Automobile Face. The Golf Squint. The Golf Walk. The Doleful and Depressed Expression of Most Women.

BY CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK,
Author of "Cradle and Nursery," "First Aid to the Young Housekeepers," "Housekeeping Made Easy," "What to Eat," "In City Tents,
(Copyright, 1904, by Christine Herrick.)

The outdoor life, no less than the indoor life is bound to leave its mark on a woman's face and bearing.

By this I do not refer only to the effect of wind and sun on the complexion or of fresh air on the general health. I mean as well that the occupation to which one most devotes oneself will in time alter the expression of the countenance. Recognizing this, it behooves the woman who takes up any outdoor sport to avoid the snares connected with such a sport.

It is not long since the papers were full of what was know as the "bicycle face." There was no necessity for describing it. We all knew it as soon as we saw it. An eager, anxious look, a straining forward look, sometimes an expression almost of terror,—it did not make a pleasant impression upon any one who saw it. The bicycle face was not the property of women alone, men had it, too, but oddly enough, it was seldom seen on children. They, bless their hearts! were too busy enjoying their wheels to have any powers to waste on worrying about anything.

That the bicycle face was not a necessary accompaniment of wheeling was proven by the fact that it was not universal. More than that, it was usually to be seen upon the unaccustomed and timid rider. This was perhaps, natural, but when the transient expression was permitted to become permanent, it was either the result of carelessness or of a lack of appreciation of the effect even a passing mood may have on the features, if the mood is repeated frequently enough

Perhaps it is a matter of course that when a timely person learns to ride a wheel the lack of self confidence should for the time being show in the face, but this lack of self confidence is not an abiding thing. Unfortunately, however, the look sometimes is. One can see that in other than outdoor pursuits. Facial tricks are easily acquired and even when recognized are hard to shake off. They are worse when their owner fails to know they are in existence.

I was amused one evening to observe the expressions of the faces of several persons who were sitting about a room engaged in various pursuits. At one side of the room an elderly man was writing. All the while the pen moved his lips moved also,—not repeating the words he was writing, but twitching back and forth in a measured fashion, as if the thoughts of the brain had their counterpart in the movements of the lips.

Another member of the family read a book in which she was deeply interested and the play of the author's fancy was indicated by the motions of the reader's eyebrows. When there was something a little unusual, or amusing, the brows went up almost into the hair when there was pathos or matter for indignation the brows, were drawn together. It was no wonder that the forehead was a maze of creases, longitudinal and vertical. Next to the reader sat her sister crocheting. In and out went the needle and every time the hook drew the wool through a loop the lips were pursed up. While the mother of the girls, who sat sewing, snapped her eyes energetically with every stitch she set.

Perhaps this may seem an exaggeration, but let any one who questions the possibility of such a set of expressions in one household take the pains to give a little study to the facial tricks of those about her. Possibly the group I instanced may have had especially mobile countenances, but there are plenty of others. When we see this sort of thing provoked by ordinary indoor avocations, is it any wonder that a more exciting pursuit leaves its mark on the face?

While bicycling was one of the first sports to receive the honour of having an expression named after it, other sports have followed in its wake. I do not refer now to the expressions gained by athletes. The look of the football or the baseball player, may, like other occupations, have a whole range of expressions of its own. And there are other outdoor ways of life that leave their mark,—a mark that is not objectionable. We all know the gaze of the sailor or of the man accustomed to looking off over wide spaces of prairie. There is nothing unpleasant about these. It is when the bicycle face means a set look of anxiety or of peevishness, when the fixing with the eye of the hole to which the ball must be driven means the golf squint, when the long stride across the links has produced the slouching ungraceful gait which has been dubbed the golf walk, that it becomes necessary to give the subject of these idiosyncasia some serious consideration.

There can be no good thing without the defects of its qualities. Our care must be not to let the defects outweigh the qualities or to permit a really admirable thing to do us harm as well as good.

Take bicycling, for instance, The wheel may have seemed to lose its popularity for a brief time, but it has come back to stay,—not, as some one says, as a fad, but as a homely custom. The day has probably gone by when people go bicycle mad,—although when one sees the wheels of the present day one can pardon an occasional attack of mania,—but the time has arrived when the bicycle is a matter of course, not only for getting about the country on errands and the like, but also as a factor in developing a higher physical standard. Anything that will make stronger hearts, that will stimulate torpid organs and clear the brain is bound to have the support of thinking people everywhere. A horse or an automobile may take one about and awaken a love of outdoors, but a horse or an automobile is not within the reach of persons of moderate means. Therefore the wheel possesses advantages for the everyday man and women that can be offered by no other means of locomotion.

So good a think as this should not sink into condemnation because those who use it are too weak or too careless to conquer the few drawbacks connected with it. There is no reason why a bicycle should be the cause of a bowed, hunched-up back or of an unpleasant countenance, if its riders will pay as much attention to their attitudes and their expression as they do to the costumes they wear when riding.

The case is the same with golf, the royal game." More and more it grows in popularity. The business man finds in it an outdoor sport which gives him exercise and amusement at the same time, and the girl who plays golf has become a recognized feature in our social outdoor life. The game is worthy of all commendation and is doing the work of a life saving station for men who could never before be coaxed from their offices during the daylight hours. But is it to leave an unsightly mark upon those who partake of its benefits? Shall that which is admirable on the golf course be transported to the street and the drawing room? Shall the half closed eye which scans the space to be covered in the next drive be fixed upon one's vis-a-vis at the dinner table? Shall our girls and men take their afternoon stroll or their promenade to church with long slouching steps, dropped shoulders and swinging arms. The poise that is acquired by shouldering the bag of golf clubs or by posing oneself for the drive is out of place except on the links.

Yet if one must choose between these and the dispirited droop of mouth and shoulders that are found among the women who lives the stay-at-home life and know nothing of the joys of free exercise in the good open air, let us, for the love of mercy, have anything that the bicycles or the automobiles or golf or tennis can give us. The one, at least, is a sign of a healthful mode of life, however much we may deprecate the form it takes. But why should one have either?

Already I have tried to indicate in these papers that one need not sacrifice a complexion in order to win proficiency in outdoor sports. The small amount of care that is given to the skin will keep it in tolerable order and the attention that is bestowed upon the expression will not be thrown away. Only recently have our women come to appreciate all that fresh air and systematic exercise will do for their health and looks. There are still too many of them who neglect all these things and are content to lose attractiveness and youth and strength sooner than take the pains to go out of doors. It would make matters infinitely worse if those who have been converted to the gospel of exercise and oxygen should do their case harm by displaying expressions and habits which prejudice the stay at-home against the pursuits to which they should be won.

COMMENCEMENT DAY.

Graduating Exercises at the Bellefonte High School.

The twenty-first annual commencement exercises of the Bellefonte High school were held in Petrikin Hall on Thursday afternoon and evening May 19th. The hall was packed to the doors with friends of the young graduates and the exercises were highly successful. The music for the afternoon and evening was furnished by Prof. Christy Smiths orchestra and was as usual on such occasions fine.

When the curtain was drawn aside the sight presented was a very pretty one indeed. the eighteen members of the class of '04 were seated in a semi-circle with Prof. Meyer and the other High school teachers seated at the right. The stage was beautifully decorated with flowers and potted plants and draped above were the class colors "Burnt Orange and purple." At the back of the stage an immense national flag was suspended. The class motto "Non Videri, Sed Esse" Not to seem but to be.

The exercises commenced at 2 o'clock and we would like to mention each member of the class individually, for they each deserve special mention but space will not permit and suffice it is to say they all acquitted themselves well. The "Class History" by Walter B. Rankin and the "Class Prophecy" by Miss H. Elizabeth Brouse were very interesting and abounded in wit and humor,

Prof. Meyer presided and introduced the speakers.

GREEN AND WHITE WEDDING.

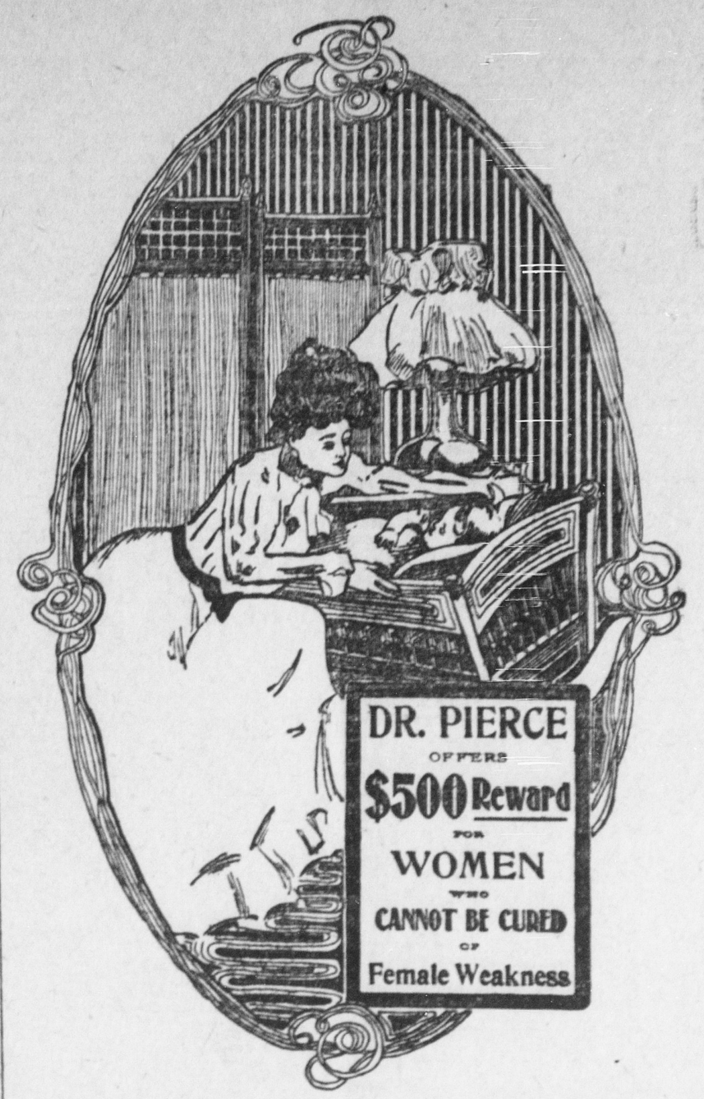
Marriage Ceremony Performed in the Glow of Brilliant Environment.

Beautiful were the scene and ceremonies that attended the wedding of two Tyrone young people Wednesday evening. At 6:30 o'clock Rev. John H. Daugherty, of the First M. E. church of Tyrone, performed the ceremony which united in bonds of holy wedlock Robert Tipple Garman and Miss Virginia Miles Bouse. The home of the bride, 1053 Jefferson avenue, was the scene of the happy event, and green and white were the ruling colors of the occasion. Evergreens and flowers predominated in the decorations, the central figure of which was a canopy under which the bridal party stood during the ceremony, electric bulbs in plentiful number and deftly arranged brilliantly illuminating the picture.

The bride was given away by her father. Miss Gertrude Bouse, sister of the bride, was maid of honor; Miss Lorene Mattern, of Milesburg, and Miss Josephine Thompson, of Curwensville, were the bridesmaids; John Tonner Harris, of Altoona, was best man, and Frank Dunkel, of Philipsburg, and Ed. P. Black, of Tyrone, were the ushers. As the bridal party approached from an upper apartment Miss Henrietta Wright of Philadelphia, sang the marriage hymn, "Perfect Love," and Miss Ada Wooden, of Tyrone, rendered the piano accompaniment. The bride wore white chiffon with veil and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The maid of honor was clad in Paris muslin and carried a shower of fern. The bridesmaids were attired in silk mull and carried white carnations.

After the ceremony refreshments were served and a few hours pleasantly spent in a social way, earnest congratulations being extended to the happy young couple by the assembled guests, of whom there was about eighty present, those from out of town, besides the attendants, being Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Garman, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Garman, of Bellefonte; Mr. and Mrs. Ira D. Garman, of Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Bouse, of Wilkinsburg; Mr. and Mrs. John Noll, of Warriorsmark; Mrs. J. A. Bouse, of Chambersburg; Miss Mame Lucas, of Philadelphia; Misses Effa and Martha Monroe, of Harrisburg; Misses Bertha and Annie Scott, of Mifflinburg, Mr. Maitland, of Williamsport; Leroy Berg of Wilkesbarre, and Master Victor Bergh, of Philadelphia. The presents of the bride are varied, valuable and handsome.

The groom is proprietor of the Garman jewelry store in the Flynn block, and is one of Tyrone's active and successful young business men. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Bouse, and is one of Tyrone's most accomplished and popular young ladies. On St. Louis express shortly after 10 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Garman proceeded to the Louisiana Purchase exposition where their honeymoon will be spent. On their return in a couple weeks they will be at home in the house owned and already prepared for them by the groom at 326 West Eleventh street.—Tyrone Herald.



"The Hand That Rocks The Cradle Rules The World."

MOTHER'S love starts a man or woman on the right path. The right remedy at the right time fits a mother for the ordeal. Motherhood is often looked forward to with feelings of great dread by most women. At such a time when she is nervous, dyspeptic, irritable and in need of a uterine tonic—something which will calm the nervous system through the special organs, and a strength builder, she will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription just what is needed. Here is a medicine that has stood the test of a third of a century with approval, in that time it has sold more largely than any other remedy put up specially for woman's weaknesses. It is guaranteed by the proprietors not to contain a particle of alcohol—which could only do harm to a sensitive system.

WHY WOMEN SHOULD CONFIDE IN A MAN.

It is much easier for a woman to confide in the average man than in the average woman. She knows that the man will respect her confidences and keep them to himself. He is strong, has more experience of the world and can help the woman who needs advice. Without a perfect medical understanding there can be no helpful advise, women should not trust their delicate constitutions in the hands of unskilled persons. It requires a thorough medical education to appreciate and understand the womanly organism. When a woman has ills and pains that she cannot bear—when life seems dark for every woman, she should confide her troubles to a physician of standing in the community, or one who has a national reputation. Certainly it would not be the part of wisdom to confide in an ignorant person without medical education simply because she was a woman. There is every reason why she should write to some great specialist, one who has made the diseases of women a specialty for a third of a century, like Dr. R. V. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. All correspondence is held sacredly confidential, and he gives his advice free and without charge.

SINGLE AND MARRIED WOMEN

Very often find that it is repugnant to their feelings to consult their family physician. In such a case they can put perfect confidence in Dr. Pierce, who has made such a success in the treatment of women's diseases, for he will give the very best advice possible and without cost. To grow beautiful, healthy and happy should be the desire of every woman. It is then possible to hold a husband and to make home happy and bring contentment to it. In most cases Dr. R. V. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will fit the needs and put the body in healthy condition.

So sure of it is the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that they offer

A $500 REWARD

For women who cannot be cured of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health, by curing the local womanly diseases which are generally responsible for the failure of the general health. A woman's entire being is centered in her womanly nature. When the delicate womanly organism is attacked by disease; when there is irregularity or a disagreeable drain; when inflammation burns and ulcers gnaw, the general health will reflect the progress of disease, in increasing weakness, nervousness, backache, headache, loss of appetite and sleeplessness.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., May, 24, 1904.

The President is busy receiving the calls of politicians and arranging the details of the coming campaign. It is admitted on all sides that in selecting Mr. Cortelyou for Chairman of the National Republican Committee he has dexterously solved a perplexing problem. It is now assured that the campaign will be conducted on a high and straight forward basis. The President declares very emphatically that he is not taking sides in the Illinois or Wisconsin factional contest. He is keeping his hands off. He also expresses himself as quite hopeful of the result in Maryland, notwithstanding Mr, Gorman's plans to capture that state. On the 30th inst., the President will visit Gettysburg, Pa., making a speech on Memorial Day. He will ride over the field in the morning and in the evening return to Washington. As the speech is the only one of his until after election, the public is looking forward to it with uncommon interest. The British Ambassador, Sir Henry Durand, left Saturday for Gettysburg, the guest of acting Secretary of War, Oliver. He will inspect and study the famous battle field. He is deeply interested in the military features of the great Civil War. A welcome guest at the White House this week is Captain W. S. Cowles, the President's brother-in-law, of the unfortunate battleship Missouri. The vessel is now being repaired at Newport News. Among recent other visitors at the White House have been Elihu Root, Senator Lodge, Ex. Gov. Black of New York, who is getting points for his speech at Chicago nominating the President, and Mr. Dover, Secretary of the Republican Committee, who is arranging the list of Speakers for the campaign.

The capture by bandits in Tangier, Morocco, of Mr, Perdicaris a wealthy citizen of the United States well known in this, and other cities, has caused a great sensation and may lead to serious complications with the Government of Morocco, if Mr. Perdicaris is not speedily released. Already the President and the Navy Department have taken action and a fleet of American battleships are now on their way to the Mediterranean. The President is not the man to per mit such an outrage to go unpunished and vigorous action may be looked for. Some thirty years ago your correspondent had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of Mr. Perdicaris and his charming family, for he had married in Europe the widow of a wealthy Englishman, who was also the mother of two very beautiful blonde daughters, one of whom bore the Arab name of Nard Almayne. Mr. Perdicaris came to New York, and was soon the center of an admiring host of friends, for besides being a tall, graceful, polite, affable gentleman, he was an artist, a playwright and devoted to literature. He brought from Europe a play he had written, also the scenery which he had painted, and he proposed to present both to the public. Private performances were given and the play was much admired, but for some whim or other the press and the regular managers gave it the cold shoulder. It was withdrawn; and later in the season the fair and graceful daughter, Miss Nard, eloped with a young actor named Decker, and the two speedily disappeared from society. Subsequently Mr. Perdicaris rented a beautiful villa in a suburb of Trenton, N. J., on the banks of the historic Deleware, not very far from the landing made by Geo. Washington, when in the dark and cold, surrounded by ice floes, he crossed over and routed the Hessians. Here, surrounded by all that wealth and taste could procure, Mr. Perdicaris and his family resided until their return to Europe. He was very hospitable, had a house full of friends, and gave elegant dinner parties. Most of his time was spent between his studio and library. He was immensely popular with all who knew him, and has maintained the same good will of the population of Tangier since his advent in that city. It is the irony of fate that a man kindly and philanthropic in all his dealings with his fellow men should, at the age of seventy years, be snatched from the midst of the surviving members of his family, by a band of thieves and cut-throats.

There is a geological quarrel on hand; a battle of the stones, between sandstone and granite, and it is to be referred to the President. Secy. Shaw wants the United States public building at Cleveland, Ohio, built of sandstone and some of the people of that city wish to have it constructed of granite. The President has been urged by Senator Dick and others, to over-rule Secy. Shaw's decision. Undoubtedly granite is the better stone for the climate of the lake side. As all the new public buildings of Cleveland are to be grouped around a spacious park they should harmonized in material, quality and color of the stone, as well as in architecture.

IN THE FAR EAST.

Most Important Happenings of the Week in Russian-Japanese War.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 21.—A report has been received here saying that General Kuroki has been repulsed with great loss. The report cannot be confirmed.

NEW CHWANG, May 21,—The reports of the Japanese retreat to Feng-Wang-Cheng are officially confirmed.

The Japanese, numbering 20,000 men, came upon 32,000 Russians in a strong position on Monday, sixty miles west of Feng-Wang-Cheng. It being unwise to risk a battle the Japanese retreated in good order and with great rapidity.

An unofficial Russian authority says a pitched battle was fought, but rumor says there was considerable loss on both sides during the clashes, with the Cossacks harassing the flanks of the Japanese. The connaissance. The pursuit was checked when the main body of the Japanese was rejoined.

This news apparently accounts for the withdrawl to an unknown destination of warships and transports from Tower Hill, ten miles north of Kai-Chou, Liao-Tung peninsula, and of renewed defensive activity at New Chwang.

No news has been received here from Port Arthur.

LONDON, May 20.—The Japanese Legation Friday received the following official dispatch from Tokio:

"A portion of one army commenced landing at Taku-Shan (west of the mouth of Yulu River) Thursday.

"Admiral Hosoya, commanding the third squadron, reports that with the third squadron, consisting of the Tuso, Helyen, Tsukushi, Sai Yen, and other vessels, he protected the landing of troops at a new, unnamed place, probably Taku-Shan, Thursday, bombarded the coast, and landed a party of blue jackets, who occupied a point of land and raised a Japanese flag, at 8 o'clock in the morning. The landing of troops immediately commenced, and was accomplished very quickly."

ST. PETERSBURG, May 23.—General Kuropatkin Sunday sent the following telegram from Mukden to Emperor Nicholas: "Sunday in the presence of all the troops here, forming the chief force of one of our divisions, a thanksgiving service in honor of St. Nicholas, the miracle worker, was celebrated. After a Te Deum, I thanked the troops in behalf of Your Majesty for their valient, self-deny ing services, and personally communicated to them the tenor of Your Majesty's dispatch of May 20. The troops replied with a hearty cheer to the wishes I expressed for Your Majesty's health and long life.

"The newly created Knights of the Military Orders and all of the wounded officers and men of the regiments present were then called out, and the troops headed by myself, marching past these brave men."

A second dispatch from General Kuropatkin to the Emperor is as follows: "Our patrols and cavalry detachments are reconnoitering this side of Fin-Chou range, seventy-five miles northeast of Feng-Wang-Cheng. The Japanese cover their dispositions by small advance guards consisting of as much as a regiment of infantry, with artillery and cavalry posted along the high roads and as little as two companys at unimportant points. Japanese cavalry are seldom seen.

"From reports received Saturday I have concluded that the first Japanese army is concentrated as follows: Three divisions at Feng-Wang-Cheng, and its environs, and on division at Hablin, half way between Siu Yen and Feng-Wang-Cheng. It is stated that Feng-Wang-Cheng is being fortified.

LONDON, May 23.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to Reuter's Telegram company says that the report of a sortie by the Port Arthur garrison has not been confirmed. It apears, says the dispatch, to have originated in the receipt of Lieutenant General Stoessel's report of the fight at Din-Chau. This, together with the facts that General Stoessel commands at Port Arthur giving rise to the rumor that the garrison had made a sortie.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 24.—It is reported that Foreign Minister Lamsdorff has received a message from the Russian consul at Chefoo, saying that the Japanese have made a land attack on Port Arthur. In doing so they lost 15,000 killed or wounded.

The Russian loss is placed at 3,000 men.

The ultimate outcome of the fighting is not stated.

LONDON, May 24.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Central News says that there was an explosion Monday on board the Battleship Orel, at Cronstadt, and that ten stokers were killed. The vessel, the correspondent says, was damaged and it will take weeks to effect repairs. The explosion, according to the dispatch, was the result of an accumulation of gas in the bunkers.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 24.—The following dispatch dated May 22, from General Kuropatkin, has been received by Emporer Nicholas: "All is quiet in the direction of the Fin-Chou-Ling mountains. It is reported from Siu-Yen on May 21 a Japanese force, consisting altogether of about one regiment of infantry, and two regiments of cavalry of the guard and of the line, was observed moving on the broad front from Habalin toward Salitstasiputz. During the night of May 20 21 one of our sentinels returning from Takusan to Louia-Miao, and Khondou-Kan discovered a detachment of Japanese infantry bivouacking at Sithoutchindza, ten miles north west of Takushau. The Japanese opened fire on our troops. There is no change in the situation along the shores of the Liao-Tung peninsula,"

LIAO YANG, May 24.—According to the latest report the Japanese camps are infected with cholera and there is an average of 100 deaths daily. The military situation is comparatively quiet.

YIN KOW, May 24.—(Delayed in transmision)—The Russians have completed the mining of the harbor at the mouth of the Liao river.

It is believed that there are immense supplies at New Chwang and that that place is thoroughly protected against any incursion of the Japanese.

TOKIO, May 25.—General Kuroki reports that a section of Japanese infantry encountered and defeated 200 Cossacks at Touto-Kou, eight miles northeast of Kuang-Tien. The Cossacks fled to Ai-Yuang-Pienmen, leaving twenty dead. The Japanese sustained no losses.

Additional details of the fight at Wang-Chiatum, near Taku-Shan, May 20, indicate that the squadron of Cossacks was almost annihilated by the Japanese infantry, which surrounded and completely routed the enemy. All the Russian officers were killed, wounded or captured. Natives report that some of the Cossacks escaped on foot, abandoning their equipment. Many killed and wounded were found on the battlefield.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The Japanese Legation has received the following cablegram from Tokio:

"General Kuroki reports that on May 21 one section of our infantry encountered the enemy's cavalry, 200 strong, at a point about eight miles northeast of Kuantien. The enemy fled in a northwesterly direction, leaving twenty dead. No casualties on our side."

PARIS, May 25.—The Soir claims that it has learned from a trustworthy source that Lieutenant General Baron Frederick and another member of the Russian Court, who recently visited Paris, came on a secret mission which had for its purpose the seeking of the intervention and effective support of the French government in the event of China adopting an aggressive attitude towards the Russians in Manchuria. The paper alleges that the government gave a formal promise of compliance with Russia's request.

WORLD'S FAIR HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS.

St. Louis Hostelries Prepared to Handle Vast Throngs—Prices Not to Be Increased—Hotel Inside of the Exposition Grounds With a Capacity For 6,000 Guests.

Ample hotel accommodations have been provided for the World's Fair visitors at St. Louis both within and outside of the Exposition grounds.

The Exposition management has organized a free information service. A pamphlet has been issued for gratuitous circulation explaining many of the conveniences that have been provided. A list of all the hotels, with rates, is contained in this pamphlet. The entire city has been canvassed, and many thousands of private householders have arranged to receive visitors. These houses are in every section of the city, and the rates at which guests will be received is a matter of record on the books of the bureau.

The Inside Inn, a hotel on the Exposition grounds, has a capacity for 6,000 guests. The Exposition management has control of the rates, which have been fixed at from $1.50 to $3.50 per day, European plan, including admission to the grounds. On the American plan the rates range from $3 to $5 per day. The hotel is 400 by 800 feet and is three stories high.

There are more than 150 established hotels in St. Louis, and a signed agreement has been made between many of their managers with the Exposition officials that rates shall not be raised during the Exposition period. Many new hotels have been built on sites adjacent to the Exposition grounds, and the published fixed rates warrant the assertion that no one need pay exorbitant rates for accommodations either at hotels or private houses.

Among the new hotels may be mentioned the Hotel Napoleon Bonaparte, which stands at Clayton avenue and Skinker road, overlooking the Exposition grounds. This hostelry will accommodate 5,000 persons. The rates, European plan, are from $1 to $5 per day. The Grand View hotel, south of the Exposition, on Oakland avenue, has a capacity for 5,000 guests, and the rates are $1 to $1.50 per day, European, and $2 to $2.50 per day on the American plan. The Kenilworth, on West Park boulevard and Billon avenue, has a capacity of 1,500 guests, with a rate of $1.50 per day.

The above mentioned are a few of the new hotels that have been erected near the Exposition grounds for the accommodation of World's Fair visitors. All told there are about twoscore. All are within easy walking distance, and all are situated on high ground, with comprehensive views of the grounds. All of the structures are well built, and in some of them the most luxurious quarters are obtainable. The rates are established and will not be increased during the Exposition.

Two Ways of Looking at It.

After the battle of Gettysburg a member of the sanitary commission ran across in the country some miles from the town a Dutch farmer who said he had never seen soldiers. "And why haven't you seen them?" the question was put. "Why didn't you get your gun, go into town and help drive them out?"

"Why," said the farmer, "a feller might 'a' got hit."

A woman who lived in a little house close to the battlefield viewed the danger in a different spirit.

She was a red checked, wholesome young body who looked well after the ways of her household. She was asked if she felt afraid when the shells flew.

"Well, no," she replied. "You see, I was busy baking bread for the soldiers, and I had my dough raising. The neighbors ran into the cellars, but of course I couldn't leave my bread. When the first shell burst into the window and tore into the room an officer came in and said to me, 'You better get out of this,' but I told him I couldn't leave my bread. I kneaded the dough until the third shell crashed into the room; then I went down cellar. But first I put my bread safe into the oven."

A crop of corn of fifty bushels to the acre, worth 40 cents a bushel, is a very reasonable proposition, still it makes the land which will produce it easily worth $100 per acre.

A Lovely Old Woman.

You sometimes see a woman whose old age is as exquisite as was the perfect bloom of her youth. You wonder how this has come about; you wonder how it is her life has been a long and happy one, says the palladium. Here are some of the reasons:

She knew how to forget disagreeable things.

She kept her nerves well in hand and inflicted them on no one.

She mastered the art of saying pleasant things.

She did not expect too much of her friends.

She made whatever work came to her congenial.

She retained her illusions and did not believe all the world wicked and unkind.

She relieved the miserable and sympathized with the sorrowful.

She never forgot that kind words and a smile cost nothing, but are priceless treasures to the discouraged.

She did unto others as she would be done by, and now that old age has come to her, and there is a halo of white hair about her head, she is loved and considered. This is the secret of a long life and a happy one.

A Little Memorial Day Reminder.

As the 30th of May, Memorial day, is drawing near, when we lay aside our daily toils to visit the different burial grounds for the purpose of paying our debt of gratitude to the fallen heroes who fought that this nation might be free, we desire to urge that all patriotic citizens esteem it their duty to aid in every possible way to make the occasion a success. All who possibly can should turn out with flowers to strew upon the graves of the deceased soldiers, and civic orders should also turn out without waiting for an invitation from the G. A. R., as they only take the lead in this noble tribute of respect. Show by your presence in the parade that the dead have not died in vain, and show to the rising generation their duty to keep up the work of honoring the memory of the soldier dead.

Interment at Tyrone cemetery.

Church Struck by Lightening.

We are indebted to our Howard correspondent for the following interesting item:

During the thunder storm which passed over this section Monday evening the Presbyterian church at Jacksonville was struck by lightening and slightly damaged. The bolt struck the chimney which conducted it to the stove pipe and thence to the floor, finally leaving the building under the door. The oil cloth on the floor was cut as if by a knife and a small hole resembling a bullet hole was made where lightning passed under the door. The roof caught fire at the chimney, but the flames were quickly extinguished by persons living nearby. The rainfall was very heavy.

While the plant employs but few hands the farmers are being greatly benefitted by such an industry.

Farmers are nearly all done planting corn, and some who planted early, complain that the grains have largely rotted in the ground owing to the cold weather. Some blame it on a new planter that has been largely sold in this vicinity this spring claiming that it planted the grain to deep for the kind of weather we have been having this season. The Luse Manufacturing Co., has succeeded in perfecting a double planter which will be glad news to the many farmers who think the Centre Hall Planters are superior to all others and who owing to the scarcety of farm help feel the need of a double planter.

As the visiting team was considered one of the best in the country, we certainly should feel proud of our boys coming off victorious. Let us all encourage a true spirit of base ball.

They Divided the Cost.

Beech Creek, May 21.—John Meyers and Frank Hitchens, both of Monument, became mixed up in a dispute over the disposal of some tools at the mines of the Harbison-Walker Refractories company at Monument last week. They tried twice to settle their differences and each succeeded in trouncing the other. They then sought law and the case came up before Justice of the Peace W. I. Harter in Eagleville Wednesday afternoon. The squire gave the men some wholesome advice about keeping the matter out of court and the litigants agreed to compromise, each paying half the costs. It seems to have been a drawn battle all the way through. Hitchens is what they call a "straw" boss at the mines and has charge of the tools. About 20 witnesses and interested parties from Monument were present at the hearing Wednesday. Every once in a while they disagree up at Monument and go to law after trying to "knock it out," but the costs are about all that result when the squire gets the case.

The above will cheerfully be paid in lawful money of the United States, by the undersigned, proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing attesting the superior curative properties of their several medicines, and thus proving the genuineness and reliability of all the multitude of testimonials volunteered by grateful people, in their behalf.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE REASON.—There is no medicine equal to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for purifying the blood. It carries off the poisons which contaminate the life fluid. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands and gives the body an increased supply of pure, body-building blood. It builds up the body with sound, healthy flesh instead of flabby fat, promotes the appetite, feeds the nerves, and so gives to weak, nervous people vitality and vigor.

"About a year ago I had a very bad cough and feared it would run into consumption," writes Hon. Geo. W. Lynch, of 27 Mason Street, Worcester, Mass. "When a severe attack of coughing would come on vomiting would set in. Matter accumulated in nose and my tonsils were irritated. After reading of the wonderful cures resulting from Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery began to use it, with some doubts as to the good it would do me, I am frank to say. But, after I had used one bottle I noticed quite a change for the better. Ordered five more bottles and before I had used them all the cure was complete. There is not now a trace of cough or cold in my system and my health is perfect."

Horse Drowned.

While hauling a large boiler from Poe valley last Friday afternoon, W. B. Boob, of Gregg township, was unfortunate in losing a valuable horse. He had six horses in the team and as he was crossing Penns creek, near Richard Dunlap's the bridge gave way and four horses and the wagon and boiler were precipitated into the creek. Mr. Boob was riding one of the horses when the accident occurred, and was thrown into the water and slightly injured.

The water was about four feet deep under the bridge and before the horses could be loosened from the wagon and and taken out of the water one of them was drowned.

Mr. Boob had unhooked the two front horses from the team before the bridge collapsed or he might have lost more of them.

The bridge was known to be in a bad condition and the supervisors of Gregg township had been notified to repair it but had neglected to do so, and on account of their neglect the township will have the pleasure of paying for Mr. Boob's horse.

WEST BRANCH MEDICOS MEET

Held Their Sessions at the Bush House Thursday

DR. FLICK PRESENT

The Famous Specialist on Tuberculosis Makes An Address—Dr. Rothrock also Present and One of the Speakers.

ANNUAL ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The eleventh annual meeting of the West Branch Medical Association whose members come from all counties along the Susquehanna River's west branch was held in the Bush House parlors here Thursday afternoon. There were about sixty members in attendance and the gathering was termed the most successful in the association's history. This was made partly so by the presence of Dr. Lawrence W. Flick, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Rothrock, of Harrisburg.

The former is the famous consumption specialist and head of the Phipps Institute in Philadelphia.

Dr. Joseph W. Albright, of Muncy, presided, and Secretary Joseph M. Corson, of Chatham's Run, did the clerical work. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Dr. George F. Harris, of Bellefonte:

1st. Vice President—Dr. S. J. Miller, of Madera, Clearfield county.

2nd. Vice President—Dr. Geo. D. Nutt of Williamsport.

Secretary—Dr. Joseph M. Coreon, of Chatham's Run.

After the routine business had been dispatched the following excellent papers were read: "The family physician in the crusade against Tuberculosis," Dr. Lawrence W. Flick, the celebrated Tubercular specialist, of Philadelphia; "A talk on forestry," Dr. H. C. Rothrock; "President's Address," Dr. Jos. W. Albright; "Surgical suggestions," Dr. Geo. D. Nutt, Williamsport; "Influence of the mind over disease," Dr. Geo. H. Woods, Pine Grove Mills.

In the evening at 7 o'clock the visiting doctors partook of the regular banquet, which is always the most important function at these annual gatherings. On this occasion Mine Host Daggett almost excelled himself in the elaborateness of the spread, as a glance at the following will show:

MENU.

Shrewsburys.
Bouillon en Tasse.
Celery. Wafers.
Baked Rock, Maitre de Hotel.
Potatoes Boulettes.

Vanilla Ice Cream with Strawberries.
Assorted Cakes.

Coffee.
Cigars. Cigarettes.

It is hardly necessary to say that every one present acquitted himself nobly. When the cigars were all aglow Toastmaster Dr. C. S. Musser, of Aaronsburg, called on some of the brethren present with responses as follows:

"Fall and Rise of the West Branch Medical Association.....Dr. Joseph Albright, Muncy
"Goat Lymph in Tuberculosis,".....Dr. Lawrence W. Flick, Philadelphia

"Practitioner is a Financier,".....Dr. Spencer W. Free, DuBois

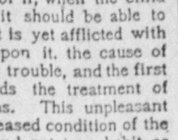
Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.



Home of Swamp-Root.

St. Louis, May 20.—At last it has been determined that the old Liberty Bell will be taken to the World's Fair. Many objections to its removal from Philadelphia were offered at first, but these have been overcome, largely because of an appeal from 50,000 St, Louis public school children.

The Liberty Bell, which will arrive in St. Louis within a few days and be placed on view in the Pennsylvania state building, is America's most priceless material treasure. No other object is so beloved by the people. Liberty Bell belongs to the nation.

On July 4, 1776, the bell, even then many years old, rang out the news of the Declaration of Independence, proclaiming liberty to the American colonists.

The bell was made in England, in 1752. Moulded in the metal just below the crown is the imperishable inscription: "Proclaim Liberty Throughout the Land to All the Inhabitants Thereof." While tolling for the death of Chief Justice John Marshall, in 1835, the old bell was cracked and its silvery tones were lost forever. Every effort to restore its tone proved unavailing.

In Independence Hall, Philadelphia, where Liberty Bell proclaimed independence 128 years ago, the precious relic has been carefully preserved. It is mounted upon rollers so that it can be taken out rapidly in case of fire. The bell has been seen at several expositions, but for the first time it is now coming west of the Mississippi river, and this will afford anopportunity to millions of people to see this relic who never would gain that chance any other way.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW.

What a heap of happiness it would brink to Bellefonte Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause.

Backache pains come from sick kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure it.

Bellefonte people endorse this.

Mrs. J. Cowher of Bishop Street says: "I was very bad with my back and head. I suffered pain in both and was very restless nights besides being so tired all the time that I could hardly drag myself about. I was very lame across my kidneys and bending over or being on my feet much was extremely painful. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills and seeing them so highly recommended for these troubles I procured them from F. Potts Green's drug store. They gave me positive relief, caused me to sleep well, stopped the pains, removed the lameness and invigorated me generally."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute

—The Georges Valley Lutheran church, Rev. J. M. Rearick, pastor, will be rededicated Sunday 29th inst. The pastor will be assisted in the dedicatory services by Rev. W. E. Fischer, D. D., of Shamokin, and Rev. I. H. McGann, of Lewisburg. The edifice has been remodeled throughout at an expenditure of consider, able money.

Do You Wish to Break Into Society?

John Farson, who some time ago challenged public attention by offering $1,000,000 to the right kind of a servant girl, again comes to the front by giving a recipe for breaking into society. It may be summarized thus:

Apply for a divorce from your wife.

Move into a neighborhood in close proximity to swelldom.

Move into swelldom as soon as you can get money enough to pay the rent.

Join a fashionable church.

Play cards at least half the time you have out of office hours.

Cultivate the golf habit.

Read the trashiest novels.

Join a good club and work up an acquaintance with society men.

Attend club functions.

Pay more attention to what is on your back than in your head.

Continuing, Mr. Farson who is himself in "good society," says.

"The possession of a lively family skeleton should help some. A divorce is often of benefit to the aspirant. If he marries a clever society woman she ought to be able to place her husband in the centre of the circle. If the candidate for social honors should chance to be in New York he should move among the sinners. If in Oak Park he should join one of the churches. In any case he ought to play carps assiduously and cultivate a vacant expression.

"What is society? You might as well ask me 'How old is And? I don't know, and never found anybody that did. Webster says—but what's the use? Almost anybody can get in if he goes about it right."

SOME FOOLISH PEOPLE.

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it will wear them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 25c, and 50c. Trial size free. At all druggists. tf

Farm Labor in Demand.

It is estimated that in seven states out west 45,000 men will be needed this summer to harvest the wheat crop. Crops are increasing faster than labor to secure them can be had, and this, too, in the face of the fact that nearly 1,000,000 immigrants a year are coming to America. Last year college students were attracted to the west by the offer of $2.50 a day and board and lodging, but so many fell by the wayside in the hot sun that scarcely enough remained to marry all the daughters of the rich farmers. Harvesters can find employment from May to nearly October, moving up from Texas to Canada; wages are high and there is plenty to eat. With a foreign war now in progress and the regular demand for foodstuffs in the countries of Europe which always buys from Americans, on the increase, the outlook for a great business in exporting agricultural products is excellent.

Many Caterpillars.

Caterpillars are going to be numerous during the coming summer and we may prepare again to battle with the disagreeable pests. State Economic Zoologist, Surface, who has familiarized himself with the conditions declares that he has discovered the nests of the little worms concealed in great numbers in the limbs of trees.

In anticipation of the prospective abundance of the loathsome insects, Professor Surface is now sending to all parts of the state a pamphlet containing valuable data concerning the habits of the apple-tree tent caterpillar or the kind that attacks fruit trees, and the methods both natural and artifical, of exterminating them. The data is an extract from the April number of the departmental bulletin.

Professor Surface does not favor the use of fire in exterminating the pests as there is the danger of burning the trees by adopting this method. He enumerates the most effective ways of getting rid of the caterpillars and mentions as the best and most satisfactory that of spraying the foliage near the tents, or nests, with arsenite.

The department is also distributing throughout the state an extract from the May bulletin dealing with the methods of exterminating the Forrest tent caterpillar, or the variety that attacks forest trees exclusively. Both pamphlets are illustrated with good photographic plates.

Haag House Changes Landlords.

The many friends of D. B. Newcomer will be sorry to learn that he is to retire from business as landlord of the Haag House. He made a very popular and successful host and we are glad to say however that he is going to remain in Bellefonte for the present. On Wednesday the deal was closed whereby Mr. Newcomer sold all his belongings, right and title as landlord at the Haag House, Bishop street to Mr. Fred Mosebarger of Clearfield.

The change will take place just as soon as the license transfer can be arranged, or about the 18th inst. The new landlord comes here well recommended as a thoroughly up-to-date hotel man.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—It is ju-t about forty-one years since the second battle of Gettysburg.

—Mrs. Henry Bowen, of Canton, Ohio, died Friday evening at her home at the above mentioned place. Mrs. Bowen is the mother-in-law of Mrs. Maggie Bayard Bowen.

—G. M. Gamble, one of the new proprietors of the Gerberich mill, moved here with his family from Antis Fort, one day last week, and now occupies the house on Allegheny street vacated by Mr. Fred Kurtz and family.

—M. L. Rishel, Esq., of Farmers Mills last week, rounded out his twenty-fifth year as justice of the peace. During that time 'squire Rishel has transacted a great amount of business, and this is especially noteworthy because his location was in a strictly rural community.

—Mrs. Julia Bolick, wife of John P. Bolick of Salona, died Thursday afternoon of paralysis, aged about 60 years. She is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Clara Diven of Pittsburg. The funeral was held Friday morning and the remains were taken to Williamsport for interment.

—The body of J. E. Bolig, the sewing machine agent who was drowned at Sunbury some time ago, was found Thursday one mile below Herndon. Search for the body was abandoned some time since. The remains were taken to Sunbury and prepared for burial.

—Governor Pennypacker has fixed August 20 as Pennsylvania day at the St. Louis Exposition. It will be the anniversary of a battle fought by General Anthony Wayne against the Indians at Fallen Timbers, within the Louisiana purpurchase, and was participated in by Pennsylvania troops, —There was a rumor current to the effect that the dead body of a man had been found in the Seven Mountains just below the old Faust Hotel. The body had a bullet hole through it and the man had evidently been robbed so the story goes. He was said to have been a medicine peddler that had often visited Bellefonte. We telephoned to Potter's Mills but could get no confirmation of the story.

—The American flag association desires that public attention be directed to a proper observance of Flag day, on June 14. That date will be the 127th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes, as the flag of the United States. Borough officials are requested to order flags to be displayed on the municipal buildings and to invite a general display on business places and private buildings.

—While Methodists are in conference at Los Angeles, Presbyterians are off to general assembly at Buffalo. These two great christian churches owe much of their influence and wide-spread power for good to these gatherings when clergy laity from north, south, east and west meet together for prayer and discussion. As each time the proceedings of these sessions are telegraphed far and wide, no one can fail to notice a growing spirit of progressive christianity in both bodies, a spirit which must make itself felt for good throughout the world.

—One Monday evening Thomas McCafferty, who has charge of several houses on North Potter street, had a dispute with the Central Pennsylvania Telephone Company which resulted in his cutting three telephone wires which passed pretty close to the roof of one of his houses. We do not know the merits of the case but understand he had notified the company to remove the wires from close proximity to his roof and they refused to do so. The result was that he cut them down himself. The poles on which the wires were strung are located on the street but the wires passed above the roof of his corner house. The wires were replaced Tuesday morning by the company.

—The June number of the Woman's Home Companion is timely and summery. The chief feature is "A Bird's-eye View of the Panama Canal," the first picture of the kind ever published. Articles appropriate to the month are "Commencement Merrymaking at Girls' Colleges" and "The Wonders of Modern Travel." Onoto Watanna writes of "The Marvelous Miniature Trees of Japan." There is a thrilling story of "The 'Patient Heroine' of the Johnstown Flood" and a wealth of short fiction, including "Out of the Ashes," by Ralph Henry Barbour, "When Fortune Knocked," "Over the Garden Wall" and "The Matrimonial Adventures of Bertie." Gardening articles for June, interesting Nature Study "A Trip to the St. Louis Fair," are all just what the up-to-date family wants. Published by The Crowell Publishing Company, Springfield, Ohio, one dollar a year, ten cents a copy.

—It's folly to suffer from that horrible plague of the night, itching piles. Doan's Ointment cures quickly and permanently At any drug store 50 cents.

—B. O. Webster, an attachee of the United States Fish Commission at Harrisburg, has been appointed Superintendent of the Bellefonte Trout hatchery to succeed John P. Creveling, resigned.

—D. J. Dempsey has moved his family from Johnstown here and is now comfortably located in the Wagner property on South Spring street. He represents the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

—The Mathematical prize of $10 which the late C. M. Bower has in previous years given to a member of the graduating class of the High school was given this year by Harry Keller, Esq.

—Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton wish to thank their many friends for the kindness shown them during their sad bereavement of their daughter Tamazine, and for the many and beautiful flowers sent her.

—Prof. J. Angel the celebrated eye specialist of Williamsport, will be at the Brockerhoff House Thursday June 2 where he will be pleased to meet all who are suffering with defective eyes and desire to save money. Give the Doctor a call. All work guaranteed.

—Glen Myers, of Mill Hall, while working in the Clintondale creamery a few days ago, had the misfortune to have his left hand caught in the pumping machinery, which badly lacerated the flesh and crushed the bone. He called on Dr. Painter at Mill Hall who dressed the wounds.

—Mrs. Catharine Houtz, mother of Mrs. M. L. Rishel, of Farmers Mills, at the advanced age of ninety years, has just recovered from an attack of common old-fashioned measles. The plague caused the aged lady considerable distress, but at present she is in her usual good health.

—Ullie Courtland, the celebrated Palmist is now at room 9, Hotel Haag, 111 East Bishop street, where she can be consulted. She can forecast your future with startling exactness and your past and present is an open book to her. She will be here a short time only and a special price of 25 cents to ladies is offered for 8 days only.

—An exchange says that a fellow looked through the bible to fine scripture to justify him in using tobacco and found but one passage. It is found in the last chapter of Revelations, and is the second clause of the eleventh verse. Now we'll guess some of the old sinners who use tobacco will read that verse within an hour after reading this paragraph.

—In this week's Bellefonte Republican will be found the announcement of Newton S. Bailey, of Bellefonte, as a candidate for Prothonotary subject to the decision of the Republican County Convention. He is already the nominee of the Prohibition party and if he gets the Republican nomination will no doubt make an energetic and successful canvas for election.

—The Roosevelt Republican Club, of this place, are soliciting aid from their friends for the purpose of purchasing a pool table for their rooms. The boys deserve all they ask for, as at the primaries and general elections they are certainly hustlers. We have been requested to state that all contributions should be paid only to Wm. H. Hamilton, treasurer, or Al. C. Derr, financial secretary.

—For several days past a handsome pastel painting of the late Calvin M. Bower has been on exhibition in one of the show windows of Frank P. Blair's jewelry store. It is pronounced a perfect likeness of the deceased and is certainly a triumph of the portrait painter's art. It is the work of the well known firm of Antrim & Landsy of Philadelphia. This firm is represented in Bellefonte by M. A. Landsy.

—The attention of council is called to the bad condition of Water street a much travelled thoroughfare. It is in a filthy state. The digging up for sewers and the new water works pipes, and not being properly replaced, has left a mudhole in the centre, The street should be graded off immediately so it would drain itself and present a more respectable condition. If the new wall is to be built and street straightened, go at it. Now is the time don't wait until fall.

A Lizard in His Stomach.

For more than a year Thomas H. Hartley, of Morrisdale Mines, has been experiencing peculiar trouble with his stomach, and frequently, especially while at work in the mines, the evidence were very clear to him that he was carrying about in his stomach a living object. He had consulted physicians, who thought he must be mistaken, as it would be difficult for anything to live very long in the stomach. A few days ago he began to fast and placed himself in the hands of Dr. H. A. Collins, of Morrisdale, for treatment. The effects of the latter Thursday resulted in the removal of a lizard fully four inches in length. The medicine administered had presumably killed the little critter, as it was dead when removed. Mr. Hartley feels very much relieved, as a natural consequence. Dr. Collins will preserve the lizard in alcohol.

Churches Change Their Faith.

At an ecclesiastical council of the Congregational churches held at Milroy the Free Presbyterian churches of Milroy and Siglerville, founded by the Rev. J. M. White, of Milroy, and officiated over by him during his life, were admitted.

Pastor White, who was a brother-in-law of former Governor Beaver, was convicted by the Presbytery for heresy, but he refused to renounce his convictions, and established the church at Milroy, which was known for many years as White's Free Presbyterian church. Later Mr. White established another church at Siglerville.

Upon his death, four years ago, these parishes were unable to obtain suitable ministers, and at last decided to join the Congregational denomination, which was close to the doctrine preached by Pastor White.

The Rev. Raymond C. Drisko, of Maine, was on 2nd inst., installed as minister of both churches. The Rev. C. L. Kloss, of Philadelphia, delivered the installation sermon, and many pastors and delegates from Johnstown, Ridgeway, Wilkesbarre and Mt. Carmel attended the exercises.

Why Chinaware is Imported.

"Regarding true china, I have little hope of our accomplishing much in the immediate future. France now sends us most of our finest china. These goods are shipped here, a duty of 60 per cent. is paid, and they can be sold for less than we can make them. The difference is caused by the higher cost of labor in the United States. While our potters get $3.50 to $5 a day, workers in Europe are paid an equivalent of $4 to $6 a week. The child labor of Europe helps the foreign manufacturers in producing wares at comparatively slight cost. There is no technical difficulty in our producing china strong, translucent, and in every way equal to what is made abroad. But the total amount of real china made here will remain insignificant until somebody devises a way for overcoming the advantages which the Europeans posess in their cheap labor."—New York Times.

Poverty Must Keep Moving.

According to the police reports there cannot be a more atrocious sin than houselessness, and the worst of vagabonds is by magisterial law the poor creature who has no home or bed to lie upon. The other day we read of a case of two poor creatures having been brought before a magistrate, charged with sleeping in the open air, so that it seems poverty is denied even the luxury of a nap, in which to forget for a time its abject wretchedness. We confess we cannot see the difference between poverty on the standstill, or poverty upon the move, but it is a fact that so long as it only continues to keep moving, it is passed unnoticed by the authorities. The instant it either plants itself to beg, or sinks down exhausted to sleep, it becomes the mark of police vengeance, and is hurried off to the police office, where a magistrate is found ready to belch forth his venom, and consign it to a prison for its enormity. Now as houseleesness is getting to be a common sin, we want to know, for the benefit of the poorer classes, what is to be done to avoid such alarming depravity. If it be punishable to be without apartments, we presume in time it may be illegal to be without a brown stone front, and at last the police reports will talk of vagabonds being brought up charged with having no country seat.

Town That Runs itself.

Spokogee, a town in the western part of the Creek nation is the only town of 1,000 population in the territory that has no town officers. The people there say they have no need of officers, and do not want any. They pay no taxes and whenever they want any public improvement they call a meeting of citizens and raise the money. A deputy United States marshal is located there, and is all that is needed to keep the peace. There is not a gambler or gambling house in the town, and the people will not permit them. They needed a school house, so the people got together and built a good two-story building for that purpose.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ertley and was a highly respected young man. He was an earnest member of the Reformed church and died sincere in that faith.

Surviving him are his parents four brothers and three sisters.

The funeral took place Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, Interment at Jacksonville.

Good Health to the Children

Children especially are fond of dainties, and the housekeeper must look carefully to their food.

As good cake can be made only with good eggs, so also a cake that is healthful as well as dainty must be raised with a pure and perfect baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable in the preparation of the highest quality of food. It imparts that peculiar lightness, sweetness and flavor noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, doughnuts, crusts, etc., and what is more important, renders the food wholesome and agreeable to young and old.
